

Consultancy Visits:

Support your secondary school to become Trauma Informed and Mentally Healthy for all

Consultancy visits are designed to support schools in reflecting on their practice, considering the progress they have made in developing trauma informed practices and considering next steps for development. Consultants are there to advise and support the school in ensuring that they are developing best practice and to offer practical solutions to overcoming any challenges and obstacles being encountered. Consultants have a comprehensive background working in challenging schools at leadership level and are trained in trauma informed practices. They are critical friends to the school helping them to secure better outcomes for children who have suffered trauma and/or have emotional health and well being difficulties. Schools are able to structure the visit around a framework that enables them to get the very best out of the day.

Suzie Frankin Senior TISUK Consultant

'When we heard that this was available, we jumped at the chance. The TISUK consultancy visit gave us a great opportunity to be assured that our school is a very happy place! The non-judgemental and helpful approach of our visitor meant we could talk openly about next steps to ensure that it stays that way. Our school has been on quite a journey, and to welcome such an astute observer of our culture, character and TIS practices was invaluable. I would wholeheartedly recommend that all schools do this!'
